Department announces crime prevention project

CB'ers can assist police officers in new program

BREAKER, BREAKER — Police Sgt. William Robinson talks on a citizen's band radio from a Washington C.H. police cruiser. Sgt. Robinson, a 10-year veteran on the police force, heads the local department's new crime prevention unit.

Record-Herald Editor

Breaker, breaker, good buddy. If you're a civic-minded, law-abiding citizen's band radio operator, the Washington C.H. Police Department could use your help in a new crime prevention project.

The program which was officially launched today is called "CB Crime Busters." It is believed to be the first program of its type in Ohio. Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott said the estimated cost of the program is more than $2,000. But, the program will be operated at no cost to the city because of donations by area merchants and volunteer assistance from a local citizen's band radio club.

Scott said the police department's crime prevention unit is hoping "to reach thousands" of persons under the program in which citizen's band radio operators in the Fayette County area are being asked to join to assist during emergencies. "I don't know how many sets there are in Fayette County, but I would imagine there are thousands," he said.

The police department will monitor Channel 11 on the citizen's band radio frequency 24 hours per day from a base station in police headquarters and mobile units in cruisers.

Under the program police officers are requesting citizen's band radio operators to report actual crimes in progress or suspicious incidents. After an emergency report has been received, the police department will notify members over Channel 11. Individual operators could also be of assistance by providing information on accidents, lost or found children, fires or crimes in progress.

The Crime Buster alert itself will be aired over Channel 9, the frequency continuously monitored by law enforcement agencies for emergency broadcasts. All subsequent transmissions between program members and police headquarters will continue over Channel 9.

All member radio transmissions to the police department should be accompanied by the member's Federal Communications Commission call letters or "handle." However, in certain instances, members reporting offenses will be able to remain completely anonymous by giving only an identification number assigned to them by police officers when registered in the program.

Members are being instructed by police officers not to take any overt or aggressive action, just to observe and report. Police personnel will be dispatched for appropriate action.

"We don't want any patrolling of streets by members," Scott emphasized. "Our units are out there and we want the members of the program to let us know what they see and if they themselves need help assistance."

Scott said other types of citizen's band radio programs have not been

For violating 200-mile fishing limit

U. S. seizes Soviet vessels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Soviet vessels were under Coast Guard control today for apparently violating provisions of the 200-mile fishing limit.

The first craft, a fishing trawler, was taken to Boston Harbor today by the Coast guard.

The second ship, a cargo ship carrying fish, was seized Sunday 160 miles east-southeast of Nantucket Island, the Coast Guard announced Monday.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the latest Soviet ship to be seized, the Antanas Snehkus, was boarded by Coast Guard and National Marine Fishery Service personnel from the Coast Guard cutter Reliance at 8:40 a.m. Sunday. The boarding occurred approximately 160 miles east-southeast of Nantucket Island, the spokesman said.

The vessel was alleged to have several species of fish prohibited by regulations implemented under the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976.

The 275-foot Taras Shevchenko, carrying a crew of 93, was seized southeast of Boston Saturday and taken to Boston Harbor in an apparent crackdown on ships violating fishing restrictions.

The Coast Guard has issued more than 60 citations and warnings to Soviet fishing vessels since the 200-mile limit went into effect March 1.

Death claims Dr. Jordan

Dr. John G. Jordan, 81, of 170 Carolyn Road, a retired Washington C.H. dentist, died at 11:25 a.m. Saturday in Fayette County Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient three days. He had been in failing health for the past nine months.

Born in Peebles, Ohio, Dr. Jordan moved to Washington C.H. in 1936 after having resided in Akron and Columbus. He retired in 1974 from practicing dentistry.

A charter member and elder of the South Side Church of Christ, Dr. Jordan was a member of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club and a 1930 graduate from the Ohio State University college of dentistry. He was an honorary life member of the Ohio State University and the American dental associations, the Rehwinkel Dental Society, the Omicron Kappa Upsilon honorary fraternity and the Delta Sigma Delta fraternity.

He is survived by his wife, the former Pearl Welty; a son, Dr. John T.F. Jordan, Ohio 753-S; a daughter, Mrs. Frank (LaVonne) Creamer, Washington-Waterloo Road; eight grandchildren; and two brothers, Glen Jordan, of Dayton, and C. Walter Jordan, of Mena, Ark. He was preceded in death by an infant son.

Services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the South Side Church of Christ with the Rev. Charles Richmond

"We've released several of them," President Carter said of the Soviet ships as he left Easter services in Georgia on Sunday. "But we just had to draw the line somewhere. We informed the Soviet embassy this past week we couldn't continue to release them, that we had to enforce the law."

Authority over the impounded ship passes to the U.S. Attorney in Boston once the ship docks at the Coast Guard station and is searched by customs officials. The crew will remain on board, with the gangway guarded and small craft prevented from approaching the impounded trawler.

Carter's vote plan backs Republicans into corner

WASHINGTON (AP) — They've backed into corners before, but Republicans seldom have found themselves in a box like the one they're in over President Carter's proposal to let people vote without registering in advance.

But then, as GOP chairman Bill Brock acknowledges, "We have a knack for taking on hard cases."

This one is really hard. If GOP leaders oppose the bill, they look like obstructionists, trying to block what Carter describes as comprehensive election reform.

The Taras Shevchenko was between 60 and 100 miles inside the limit when it was boarded about noon Saturday by a party from the cutter Decisive, the Coast Guard said. The vessel was officially seized about 10 hours later for allegedly catching and keeping about 3,500 pounds more than its quota of river herring, which, under licensing provisions, may account for only 1 per cent of the total processed fish aboard, the Coast Guard said.

Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Nunes, chief of the Coast Guard's Maritime Law Enforcement branch, said there were four tons of the fish — or 1.2 per cent of the catch — aboard the vessel.

Accept it, and they risk trouble in future elections and in the ranks of their own Republican minority, for that dramatically broadened voter registration would almost surely work to the advantage of the Democrats.

Arguing for the bill at a House hearing, Attorney General Griffin Bell suggested that current voter registration laws discriminate against minority groups, the less educated and the poor by making it more difficult for them to cast ballots.

Those prospective voters are more likely to side with Democrats than with Republican candidates.

That's an issue too delicate to debate, since no politician can afford to confess that he wants anything but the broadest possible turnout of voters.

Sen. Charles Mathias, a liberal Republican from Maryland, is co-sponsoring the Carter bill, and he says it should pass even if it would work to Democratic advantage.

"If the registration of several million more Americans means trouble for the Republican party, the Republican party is going to have to do some renovating ... to embrace a wider spectrum of the American electorate," he said.

Brock and the party's congressional leaders spoke at the outset as though they were supporting the bill Carter sent to Congress on March 22, but they have since pointed up their reservations.

Brock said he was talking about the objective of broadening voter participation, not about the bill Carter proposed. That distinction was lost on more than a few Republican leaders around the country, who wasted no time in protesting to GOP headquarters.

When the Carter bill was proposed, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker Jr. endorsed some sort of universal voter registration. House GOP Leader John Rhodes of Arizona went further, and forecast approval of the measure with little change and with substantial Republican support.

EACH YEAR, the employees of the Armco Steel Corp., believing in the ideals of company founder George M. Verity, observe his birthday (April 22) with a Founder's Day community service project.

Since the first Founder's Day on April 22, 1944 in Middletown, Ohio, the idea of a day devoted to others has become a worldwide Armco Steel Corp. observance. The first Founder's Day observance in Washington C.H. was held in 1951.

Mr. Verity's philosophy of serving his fellow man in the spirit of kindness characterized his life. Because he incorporated his ideals in the Armco Steel Corp. policies, the employees have had a desire to carry on his favorite motto of "He Lives Most Who Serves Best" by giving of their time and money to worthwhile community projects.

Local Founder's Day projects completed by employees of the Armco Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H. since 1956 include improvements at the Fayette County Children's Home, construction of facilities at Boy Scout and Girl Scout camps, facilities for Little League and Babe Ruth League programs, tower wiring and a television set for the lobby at Fayette County Memorial Hospital, a shelter house at Eyman Park, and improvements to the senior citizen's center.

Serving on the local Founder's Day employee committee this year are Robert Yarger, chairman; Homer Curry, Gary Herdman, Jack Hatmacher, John Mason, Olan Bentley, Carolyn Grim and Betty Fulwider.

Union remains divided

DP&L strike over, but problems loom as workers return

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The strike against the Dayton Power & Light Co. by Utility Workers Union Local 175 may be over but union members say the problems are not.

The utility workers were returning to their jobs over the weekend after a strike that lasted three months.

"We have a lot of internal wounds to heal," Ted Potts, union vice president, said.

Some union members say those wounds may cause the company's efficiency to suffer for awhile.

A contract with DP&L was signed last Thursday by union president Harold Moots, but a dispute within the union has arisen over whether the vote that preceded the signing was valid.

Members say there were six questionable votes and a malfunctioning voting machine.

The union remains divided as to whether the contract is better than the first one they rejected last fall.

The union's tellers committee plans to ask the membership this week if they want to go through the legal process and expense of attempting to have the contract nullified because of the election controversy.

The union's lawyer reportedly told members of the committee that it could take years and thousands of dollars before the issue is settled.

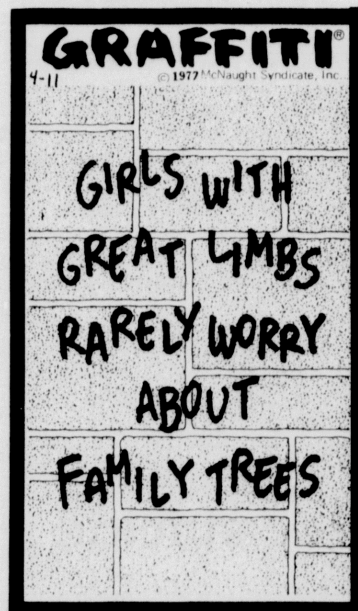

Union members have mixed reaction about the effects of the election controversy on morale.

Mike Asher, union steward and picket captain, said "I'm going to put in my eight hours, and that's it. And that's the general consensus. No one is going to put forth any extra effort."

Others say the union is stronger now than before the strike.

Oscar Salyer, another union steward, said, "We stuck it out a long time, and that pulled us together."

The strike began Jan. 10. The new contract provides for a 7.5 per cent wage hike and a new retirement clause.

Christians mark Christ's ascension

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pope Paul VI wished the world "a happy Easter" in 14 languages, anarchists interrupted Mass in Paris' Notre Dame Cathedral, the Carters held a sunrise service on a Georgia back porch, and millions watched the re-enactment of the Easter story on television.

"Life is beautiful if it is new," the Pope told an estimated 200,000 people thronging St. Peter's Square and overflowing into nearby streets. "We believe that the young people of today are particularly predisposed to understand and welcome this good wish, which is full of hope and energy."

In Jerusalem, the crush of pilgrims was unusually heavy because Easter came on the same day this year for the Eastern and Western Christian churches.

While Orthodox and Roman Catholics worshiped at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, many Protestants attended sunrise services at another traditional tomb site outside the walls of the Old City. Lutherans went to the Mount of Olives, where the New Testament says Christ ascended to heaven.

In Paris, two young French women ran up the aisle of Notre Dame shouting and trying to unfurl a banner supporting the West German Baader-Meinhof gang of anarchists during services that were being televised throughout Western Europe. Police seized them on the steps of the altar, and the service continued.

President Carter and his family held a sunrise service on his son Jack's back porch in Calhoun, Ga. Amy read from the Bible, Mrs. Carter led a prayer, and the family talked about the death and resurrection of Christ and what it meant to them, the President reported later. Then the Carters went to Sunday school and church at the First Baptist Church.

Bright sunlight brought thousands to promenade up and down New York's Fifth Avenue, closed to traffic for 19 blocks for the annual Easter Parade. Atlantic City's boardwalk also was crowded.

The biggest Easter audience was in the homes of America Sunday night as millions watched the concluding half of Franco Zeffirelli's 6½-hour movie "Jesus of Nazareth." Audience figures were not yet available, but based on ratings of the first half April 3, NBC predicted a total audience of 90 million.

The officially atheistic Soviet government announced that Easter services were held "in all the temples and prayer houses of this country's cities and villages." In Moscow, special buses took people to the cemeteries to clean family graves and leave Easter pastries and eggs.

But in apparent competition with midnight church services, the government television service presented a late variety show featuring Liza Minnelli and other seldom-seen Western performers, and movie theaters had special late showings of popular French, Japanese and American films.

The rival factions of the Irish Republican Army held marches in both Dublin, capital of the Irish republic, and Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, to commemorate the 1916 Easter uprising. Meanwhile, the IRA's Official wing accused the Provisionals of planting a bomb that killed a 10-year-old Belfast boy and several hours later killing his uncle in a street ambush. The Provisionals denied responsibility for the bombing and refused to comment on the shooting.

Peres commands Israel's laborists

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Shimon Peres took command of Israel's embattled Labor party today as a last-minute candidate for prime minister, dogged by the reputation of being a hawk on peace terms with the Arabs and the threatened defection of Labor's leftist ally, the Mapam party.

The Labor party's central committee chose Peres, 53, to lead the party in the general election May 17 following Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's resignation over an illegal account he and his wife had in a Washington, D.C., bank.

Mapam's central committee was to meet today to decide whether to continue in partnership with Labor under Peres, whom it has consistently opposed as a hardliner toward the Arabs.

Peres, who has been defense minister since 1974, denied at a news conference after his election Sunday that he is a hawk.

"My political training is such that I have learned to form opinions relevant to the situation," he said.

In the desire for peace "we are all — hawks, doves, left and right — serious to the very end, we are unanimous," he declared.

His hardline image appears to stem more from his past alliances than his own public statements. Oldtime politicians remember him as a disciple of the eye-for-an-eye philosophy evolved by David Ben-Gurion and Moshe Dayan to fight Palestinian guerrilla attacks against Israel.

Peres — Hebrew for eagle — has also given tacit support to Gush Emunim, the right-wing nationalist movement which advocates annexation of the West Bank of the Jordan River occupied by Israel in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War. But now he says he is willing to trade parts of the West Bank for peace.

At his news conference Sunday he said he would make "no substantial change" in Rabin's foreign policy.

He said he did not object to renewing the Geneva peace conference this year and that he would negotiate with Palestinians from the West Bank or Palestinians in a Jordanian delegation but not with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Peres said he had "a long record of cooperation" with the United States, admired President Carter and thought it would be "a good idea" for him to visit Washington this year.

The 815-member party committee chose Peres with a show of hands after his only rival, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, agreed to step aside and become defense minister if Labor wins the election.

Rabin, meanwhile, remains caretaker prime minister until the election unless the cabinet accedes to his request for a leave of absence. It is not certain, however, that this would be constitutional, and this may not be decided until next week.

Stock list shows gains

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market pushed ahead today, building on the upturn it began before the three-day Easter weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose nearly 2 points in early trading.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted no special news to account for the advance. Rather, they said, it stemmed from internal market forces after a steady downtrend in stock prices since the start of the year.

Today's early prices included American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/8 at 62 3/8; Citicorp, unchanged at 28; General Electric, up 1/4 at 49 1/2, and IBM, down 3/8 at 276 3/8.

Last Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 4.15 to 918.88, reducing its loss for the four-day week to 8.48 points.

Advances outpaced declines by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 17.26 million shares, against 16.60 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .20 to 53.46.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .38 at 110.43.

Incomes not keeping pace with rising housing costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an era of steadily rising housing costs, the adage "A man's home is his castle" may have to be updated to "A man's home is his hassle."

How about a change from "Home is where the heart is" to "Home is where the money is"?

That message can be drawn from a report released Sunday on a 1975 housing survey by the Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

During the first half of the 1970s, it said, family incomes of both homeowners and renters failed to keep pace with the spiraling costs of housing.

This has halted what had been a steady pre-1975 growth in the proportion of Americans who own their own homes.

Leon Weiner, president of the National Housing Conference, said the report "raises a whole series of implications that are going to have to be looked at in some detail," including the possibility of further federal subsidies on interest rates for homebuyers.

The study showed that the percentage of American households owning their own homes in 1975 was 64.5 per cent, the same as the year before. The percentage had been rising steadily since 62.9 per cent in 1970.

The report also noted that the median value of owner-occupied, single-family homes rose nearly 73 per cent, from $17,100 in 1970, to $29,500 in October 1975.

During the same period, it said, median income for homeowners rose 40 per cent, from $9,700 to $13,600.

Renters fared no better, according to the study. It said median monthly gross rent including utilities increased from $108 to $156, or 44 per cent, while the median annual income of renters went up from $6,300 to $7,900, or 25 per cent.

And the proportion of U.S. renters who must devote 25 per cent or more of their income to housing increased to 42.3 per cent in 1975, compared to 39.8 per cent in 1974 and 36.5 per cent in 1970.

Overall, the median proportion of income devoted to housing costs among renters was 23 per cent in 1975.

For homebuyers with a mortgage the figure was 18 per cent, up from 17 per cent in 1974. Their costs included utilities, insurance, taxes and other expenses.

"The implications are we're doing something wrong," said Lawrence Simons, assistant HUD secretary for housing.

He noted that the government has already expanded its housing subsidy programs since 1975, but said, "We need a little more money. There's never enough money."

Top Marine NCO prefers old job as foot soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sgt. Maj. John R. Massaro of Orrville is the highest ranking enlisted man in the Marines and a footslogger at heart.

He may have a big office next to that of Gen. Louis H. Wilson, the Marine commandant, but Massaro prefers the life of basic training camp and the infantry squad.

The 47-year-old non-commissioned officer wears neat, starched uniforms to work but on his chest are a colorful deck of combat ribbons.

"Back in the days when I enlisted," Massaro says, "a young Marine didn't come from a background where he had very much. Basically, he expected the Marine Corps to keep some type of roof over his head, clothing on his back and to give him three squares a day. In addition to that, if he could get a few beers, he was happy."

A sergeant major in peacetime acts the part of a flegman, a sort of living poster for other enlisted Marines to emulate. And Massaro fits the part.

At six feet and 175 pounds he can still score 278 out of a perfect 300 on the Marines physical fitness test. When he enlisted in the Marines 29 years ago he was 140 pounds.

His father, who made a living pounding iron fasteners into the ends of telephone poles and railroad ties, couldn't afford to send his son to college. So Massaro had to give up his wish of studying agriculture at Ohio State University. He joined the Marines to see the world.

At first, the world was only as large as Paris Island, S.C. where he got his basic training. Later it consisted of the Korean front and still later it included the rice paddies in Vietnam.

"When I was a young Marine nearly all the Marines were riflemen," a wistful Massaro recalls. "In the Korean War, (some) cooks and bakers and motor transport men actually had to pick up a rifle and join Marines in rifle squads and infantry platoons.

"It is no longer a truism that every Marine is a rifleman. Many of our fields are so advanced, so technical — computer operators, key punch operators — without that much emphasis on being a rifleman."

Massaro doesn't want to forget the rifleman's regimen. Four days a week, he runs five miles.

Steelworkers' contract may hike prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new contract covering 340,000 of the nation's steelworkers is expected to push steel prices higher, but not enough to worry the government's inflation-watchers.

"We all know that ultimately prices must cover costs," J. Bruce Johnston, vice president of U.S. Steel Corp. and chief industry negotiator, said after union officials ratified the agreement with the 10 largest steelmakers on Saturday.

Retiring Steelworkers Union President I.W. Abel said the final contract negotiated under his leadership was not inflationary.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability will review the pact, as it does all labor agreements. But Jack A. Meyer, the council's acting assistant director, said the contract was about what officials anticipated.

"It appears to have come in at about what we expected. There doesn't seem to be anything shocking or unusual about it," he said.

Local union leaders initially rejected the contract, then reversed themselves on a roll call vote and approved it.

"This is the biggest disappointment of my life," Abel reportedly told local leaders after their initial rejection.

The dissension apparently was a carryover from the recent bitter election battle between Lloyd McBride and Ed Sadlowski to succeed Abel.

McBride, the victor, said the contract in effect guarantees job security to all workers with two decades of service.

The new three-year contract provides steelworkers with an increase of 10 to 15 per cent over the current $8.08 average hourly wage. There are also provisions for incentive pay and cost-of-living increases in the contract, which starts Aug. 1.

Hourly wages will increase 80 cents over the three years in steps of 40 cents, 20 cents and 20 cents. Incentive pay will add another dime.

Steelworkers will receive beefed-up pensions and increased supplemental jobless benefits on top of regular unemployment insurance.

Workers will be permitted to retire early when their age and length of service total 65 and they have worked 20 years in the mills.

Low-pollution coal study hurt by lack of support

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An effort to produce a new form of low-pollution coal that could be a boon to the Appalachian mining industry is being hampered by a lack of support from private business interests.

Dr. Patrick R. Dugan and fellow researchers at Ohio State University are working on finding the most practical method of chemically removing sulfur from the type of coal mined in the Appalachian region.

Dugan says with proper funding, he could have a scaled up model of his process in operation within four years.

"What you need is a few long range thinkers," said Dugan. "Two years ago, this research was just as important. But until ambient air quality standards were put into effect, nobody worried about this."

The research is carried out amid grimy tubs of blackened water and putrid mine waste. The waste is the same stuff that pollutes mountain streams. Now it's being used to breakdown some of the sulfur compounds in high sulfur coal.

The sulfur extraction process is still in experimental stage. Dugan already has produced a coal product with lower sulfur content, but must continue the research "to optimize the system and push the bacteria to the limit" of its efficiency.

"The trick is to see if we can get at it economically and in large enough quantities," said Dugan, who holds a doctorate from Syracuse and has been at OSU for 13 years.

The problem with high sulfur coal is that it releases large quantities of sulfur dioxide into the atmosphere. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has rigid standards for emission of sulfur dioxide. And it's on the verge of focusing anti-pollution efforts on Ohio, which lacks its own pollution standards.

To meet the federal pollution criteria, Eastern industry already is paying more to import lower sulfur content coal from the Western states.

But miners stand to lose if that trend continues. United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller has said that 30,000 Ohio miners will lose their jobs if federal sulfur dioxide standards are enforced under present conditions. He says coal mines in Ohio could close if industry is forced to import the more expensive low sulfur coal.

Dugan says his greatest single problem is getting private coal companies to make a long-term commitment to research.

"The biggest problem we have is getting the private sector to help," he said. "The government is willing to spend money, but wants to see results. Researchers in universities have the know-how but don't want to waste time without support."

According to Dugan clean burning coal is only a temporary solution to the problem of supplying an energy-hungry country with the fuel it needs. Coal, like oil, is an exhaustable resource.

"Generally, we're satisfied that we have enough information to make believers out of skeptics," Dugan said. "But in this business, it's axiomatic that if you solve one problem, you create another."

Failure of arms agreement to increase defense bills

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Warnke, the United States' chief negotiator at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), says failure to reach an arms agreement with the Soviet Union would force this country to spend additional billions of dollars on defense.

"Unfortunately, that is the situation if we don't come up with an effective arms agreement," Warnke cautioned in an interview Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" television program.

Warnke, whose nomination to the job by President Carter was narrowly confirmed by the Senate, was guardedly optimistic that agreement would be reached even if it required a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

"We are prepared to deal at whatever level is necessary to reach an agreement we consider vital for the United States and the human race," he said. "President Carter is both a practical man and a persuasive man and would be anxious to exercise his talents if that became necessary."

Warnke denied that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's mission to Moscow to present Carter's arms limitation plan was unsuccessful, despite some comments to the contrary.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko took the unusual step of holding a news conference to denounce the plan as a "cheap and shady maneuver."

"I don't think the mission failed," Warnke said. "I think we presented the American position . . . I don't think anyone expected a positive response from the Soviet leadership. We have come up with new proposals. It is now up to them to respond."

Carter plan

Baker has since expressed concern about potential abuses, and Rhodes has told colleagues there should be amendments to tighten it against fraud.

What Carter wants is a bill that would require the states to let people register at the polls on election day, identifying themselves with a driver's license or a similar ID card, or by having a registered voter vouch for them.

There would be stiff penalties, fines and prison terms up to five years for fraudulent registration and voting.

But the administration says fraud has not been a serious problem in the five states that now permit voting without advance registration.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No, Tom Snyder doesn't want to host "Tonight" if Johnny Carson leaves. No, NBC News hasn't asked him about eventually anchoring the "NBC Nightly News," which John Chancellor now does.

Yes, NBC has asked him if he'd like to host a tube version of "People," magazine, which gets a six-week summer try even though a first effort Lily Tomlin hosted flopped earlier this season.

Having disposed of the first two rumors, Snyder said that in the matter of the "People" caper "they've (NBC) asked whether I want to do it — if they do it — and I said, 'Sure.'"

But the tall, quick-to-laugh star of NBC's late-hour "Tomorrow" interview show said nothing definite has been set on that yet.

Snyder, 40, was in this earthquake-prone town to tape — what else? — "The National Disaster Survival Test," a what-do-you-do-during-disasters quiz NBC will air May 1 as its "Big Event" show.

The executive producer is Warren Bush who, Snyder says, taught a Marquette University journalism course Snyder attended in his student days. They hadn't seen each other since until work on the show began.

Snyder soon will have another kind of reunion — with California living. "Tomorrow," based in New York since December 1974, will move its headquarters back here — where it began in 1973 — next June.

Los Angeles is where he hit it big in 1970, when he began anchoring the last hour of a two-hour local weeknight newscast at NBC-owned KNBC. But he's not returning because he dislikes New York life.

It's mainly because Snyder, recently divorced, has a 12-year-old daughter here: "She'll be a teen-ager soon, and I think it's important for her to have me a little bit closer than 2,500 miles away."

And he's convinced NBC there's no reason he can't do "Tomorrow" here, now that he recently finished a second job he was anxious to leave — anchoring local news on NBC-owned WNBC-TV in New York.

That job was part of the deal when NBC moved him and "Tomorrow" out to the East Coast. He agreed to anchor the second hour of WNBC's two-hour "Newscenter 4" in addition to his "Tomorrow" duties each night.

Threaten boycott of Coors

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Striking workers at The Adolph Coors Co., the nation's fifth largest brewery, threatened to mount a nationwide boycott today. The company has countered with threats to replace the strikers.

About 1,500 employees walked off their jobs last Tuesday in a dispute about seniority rights and other language in a new contract that Coors put into effect despite union rejection.

Management and supervisory workers have kept the brewery running at about two thirds capacity, a Coors spokesman said.

Don Bodemann, vice president of striking Local 366 of the Brewery, Bottling, Can and Allied Industrial union, said letters urging the boycott went out to taverns and liquor stores in Colorado over the weekend. He said the AFL-CIO would carry the boycott to other states with help from local members.

Coors is distributed in 13 western states. A Coors spokesman said the beer is made available in other states by "bootleggers" who buy it in the 13 states and transport it to individual distributors.

A company official said Coors does not think the boycott will have any significant effect on beer sales, adding, "It is obvious they will use everything possible to discredit our company and our product."

He said 478 of the strikers have returned to work and that the brewery should be at full production within five weeks.

William Coors, company president, said replacements would be hired as permanent employees and warned strikers "it may lead to the loss of your jobs."

He accused the union of using striking workers as "sacrificial pawns in an ideological fight" between the AFL-CIO and Coors.

Union officials countered that the brewery could not fire the strikers even if it hired replacements.

'Happy hour' restricted

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP) — The U.S. Army says "Happy hour" will no longer mean cut-rate drinks for soldiers visiting servicemen's clubs operated by the army in Europe.

The European command, in an effort to stem alcohol abuse among servicemen, has ordered an end to the long-established practice of reducing prices on alcoholic beverages for an hour or two in the afternoon or early evening, an Army spokesman said Friday.

"You are well aware that alcohol abuse in USAREUR (U.S. Army-Europe) has reached such proportions that we must all join forces to meet this problem head-on," Gen. George S. Blanchard, USAREUR commander, said in a message to units.

The change is part of a campaign to "de-emphasize and deglorify" the use of alcohol, the headquarters spokesman said.

He said the Army does not intend to eliminate the happy hour, which is meant to be a chance for people to meet in a friendly atmosphere.

Child immunization plan

Recently the World Health Organization reported that only about four million of the 90 million children born each year in the undeveloped nations are vaccinated against major diseases of childhood. As a consequence, it was said, five million die annually of these diseases and many suffer permanent damage.

Now a national immunization conference in Washington has emphasized the fact that only about 65 per cent of American children are protected against the major childhood diseases: poliomyelitis, measles, German measles, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus. The international situation is a kid of backdrop for our own national failings in this regard.

The undeveloped countries have some valid excuses - the cost of inoculation, which though small may be prohibitive on a large scale; ignorance, even among many health workers, as to the effectiveness of immunization and the results of failure to provide this protection. In our affluent country, with a system of universal education, these excuses do not hold much water.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. took note of this in a positive way at the immunization conference. "Our mission," he said, "is to eradicate the ignorance and abolish the apathy that have caused the disgracefully low levels of childhood immunization."

The federal government is taking the initiative in a campaign to vaccinate the estimated 20 million children not yet immunized against one or more of the major diseases. But the program must also be, in a crucial sense, a local undertaking. School systems and other institutions will be involved in singling out non-immunized children and seeing that they get shots. This cooperative venture deserves enthusiastic public commitment and support.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . By Marquis Childs

Drought worsens in the west

SAN FRANCISCO — The sun shines down out of the cloudless blue sky on this beautiful city by the bay. But there is no joy in it for San Franciscans who are ready with even a day or two of rain to dance in the streets in the hope of easing the drought that is the worst on record in California.

In the East, preoccupied with the rugged winter and its consequences, there is little realization of what the drought means to this most populous state and to the agricultural West in general. A general feeling of resentment is directed at President Carter for his veto of 19 water projects including the Auburn Dam on the American River and his "go slow" policy on disaster relief.

Robert J.C. Burnham, chief of the River Forecast Center, of the National Weather Service, has described the outlook as "terrifying." Soil moisture and reservoirs are the lowest on record, the snowpack the lowest since surveys began in 1930. Comparisons with the drought of 1924 hardly apply since the state then had a population of 3.5 million while, with the tremendous influx of recent decades, it is today 21.5 million.

With irrigation wells going deeper and deeper, the water table in many rich agricultural areas is steadily dropping. This means greatly increased costs for electrical pumping to bring out the water and that will be added to the price of California's fruits and vegetables shipped nationwide.

Ronald B. Robie, director of the state's Dept. of Water Resources, in a just-published report, says that even if 1978 were to bring a return to normal rain and snow the deficit would be extremely difficult to overcome. California, he noted, has had as many as six consecutive years of below-normal precipitation.

Mining out the vast underground water resources is a salvation for some areas and some individuals. Here is one grower whose shallow well has stopped pumping because the water table has dropped. Just around the corner is a big grower who spent $30,000 to put free-wheeling life-style that promised unlimited natural resources. A report by the United States Geological survey, hitherto kept secret, shows that an active earthquake fault is about a mile from the Auburn Dam into which millions of federal dollars have already been poured. One of the 19 dams Carter vetoed, it would take $37 million to complete it.

The dilemma of the drought in the West and how to live with it is matched by the crisis over energy and the urgent and immediate need for conservation. A solution that President Carter has promised for April 20 is likely to cause an even more drastic upheaval in the way a motorized public lives than the rationing of water and the dwindling of major streams that are running today at 14, 16, 29 per cent of their normal flow.

We have been profligate in our abuse of the riches of a continent that even a generation ago seemed boundless. That is particularly true of the Sun Belt where thousands have migrated, lured by high-pressure advertising, in search of an easy life. In Phoenix, Ariz., with close to a million people, the water table has dropped dangerously low. The demand is constantly building up in that fastest-growing state where air conditioning is essential during the brutal summer months.

The crisis in American affluence is Carter's inheritance from a past in which we chose to ignore the danger signals ahead. By some estimates, with the layoff of farm workers and the shutdown of plants dependent on water, from 2 to 3 per cent can be added to the unemployment total. Price boosts on farm produce will feed inflation.

Carter has prophesied that his energy program will make him far less popular than the polls now show him to be. His popularity in the West is already dropping at a rate to match the declining water tables.

Find doctors refuse to treat lawyers

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska is investigating allegations that several doctors, apparently upset over malpractice suits, have refused to treat families of some lawyers who handle such cases, the state attorney general says.

A source familiar with the case, who asked not to be identified, said that in one instance two doctors refused to see him at Providence Hospital. And he said one of the lawyers called to say he was "very, very upset about it."

Dr. Mike Beirne, an Anchorage state representative, confirmed the incident at Providence Hospital. And he said one of the lawyers called to say he was "very, very upset about it."

A spokesman for Providence Hospital declined to comment on the allegation and said records on the matter would not be made public.

The attorneys believed to have made the allegations refused to confirm their role in the action or offer any comment. The doctors were unavailable for comment.

One Anchorage doctor, commenting on the case, said some doctors "don't feel they can be unemotional about someone who is suing their family or close friend for a seemingly unfounded case. That's why they might not want to be involved. They don't think it's fair to the patients involved."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Tell unlikely suitor
he's out of bounds

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old widow who is being pestered by a bachelor in whom I have no interest. But HE is interested in ME.

I work from 8 to 5, and when I come home I find him pattering around in my garden, or sweeping my garage or driveway.

I told him I am not interested in marriage, sex, love or a live-in companion. He said HE was.

I don't want to have him arrested for trespassing on my property or harassing me, because I don't think he's dangerous.

How can I get this man to leave me alone without going to the law?

NOT THAT LONESOME
DEAR NOT: Tell him you will have him arrested if he doesn't stay off your property and quit bothering you. And if that doesn't work, you may have to call the police. He may not be dangerous, but you have a right to be left alone.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I gave our married son (who lives near us) a key to our home so he can come here to check up on things when we're out of town.

Well, it seems that while we're away, he and his wife come in and borrow whatever they want. We don't even know what they've borrowed until we look for something and can't find it. (I refer to serving trays, linen, card tables, garden tools and bottles from our bar.)

We've always been on good terms with our children and want to stay that way, but we think they have their nerve helping themselves to our things and not returning them.

Is there any way we can get our key back and put a stop to this without demanding it and hurting their feelings?

PHILADELPHIA PARENTS
DEAR PARENTS: What's wrong with the direct approach? Simply ask them to return: (a) everything they've borrowed; (b) the key. And don't be bashful about telling them why.

DEAR ABBY: As a professional musician, I know I speak for all pianists and organists who have performed at parties and have wanted to tell the guests the following:

Please do not:
1. Sit on the bench with me and engage me in conversation. It makes it impossible for me to perform.
2. Place drinks on the organ or piano. (I've had whole drinks fall on the keyboards and saturate the organ.)
3. Decide that you can play, too, and then proceed to fiddle with the keys while I am playing.
4. Sing loudly into my ear.
Abby, you would be doing all musicians a tremendous favor if you'd publish this.

R.G.R., THIBODAUX, LA.
DEAR R.G.R.: Consider it done. CONFIDENTIAL TO "NEW READER" IN BEND, OREGON: You've gone from bed to worse. Bend is a very small town for people with big mouths. Take my advice and move to Portland.

Ink sleuths detect false bookkeeping

WASHINGTON (AP) — White collar criminals look out: Treasury Department sleuths have developed a new method to detect false bookkeeping. They can tell from the ink whether documents have been backdated.

The program, called ink tagging, was launched in 1973 and is about 70 per cent complete, according to spokesmen for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF).

The department has enlisted the aid of major ink manufacturers to change their chemical formulations each year. Each change, officials say, represents a date prior to which that particular ink did not exist.

Six of 16 ink manufacturers are participating in the program and five others are experimenting with it, according to ATF.

The ink from suspect documents can be analyzed by ATF scientists and compared with standard ink samples kept in its library.

"Often it is possible to prove a document was backdated if the questioned ink matches a library ink that did not exist when the document was dated," a spokesman said.

Perhaps the most famous ink tagging case involved former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Investigators had a diary of someone who said he had paid kickbacks to Agnew. Scientists were able to verify that all the inks used were available at the time of the entries, and that the sequence showed a random pattern consistent with day-to-day work in a diary.

According to prosecutors in the case, this evidence was crucial to eliciting Agnew's no contest plea in 1973 to income tax charges.

In another case, former Cincinnati Police Chief Carl Goodin was convicted of perjury after an ink expert proved that a list of informants was manufactured and backdated.

And in the Juan Corona mass murder trial in California, ATF ink experts proved that Corona's pen was used to prepare the death list in his diary.

Warm weather covers east

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Light rain was falling in the northern half of the West today as clear skies and cool temperatures prevailed in the East. Temperatures are above normals in the Ohio Valley and central and southern Appalachian Mountains.

The band of scattered showers moved in from the Pacific Northwest overnight and stretched as far south as northeast New Mexico.

Skies are clear over the southern half of the Great Plains, the intermountain region and California.

Temperatures early today ranged from the 60s in the plains to the 30s across much of the north Atlantic Coast.

Early morning readings in the Rocky Mountains westward were in the 30s. Predawn temperatures ranged from 9 degrees in Houlton, Maine, to 73 in Needles, Calif.

The National Weather Service forecast rain showers in the Pacific Northwest, central Great Lakes states and in Colorado, western Kansas and west Texas into New Mexico but clear to partly cloudy skies were predicted for the rest of the nation.

Couple remarries after 42 years

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — James (Grandpa Billy) Petrey and Nona Prewitt have decided to give their relationship another try 42 years after they were divorced.

Surrounded by their three children, 13 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren, 81-year-old Petrey and 71-year-old Mrs. Prewitt Saturday retied the knot that was broken in 1935 when they divorced after 14 years of marriage.

The couple was first married in 1921. After their divorce, each remarried.

Mrs. Prewitt was widowed and Petrey divorced his second wife.

The blushing bridegroom says his former wife-new bride did not recognize him at first when he called her for a date two years ago.

It took him until January of this year to propose.

Their daughter, Nora Myers, says she always knew her parents would get back together.

After a ceremony complete with a three-tiered wedding cake, the couple left on a California honeymoon.

Twin Oaks Club topic is 'Trees'

The Twin Oaks Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Tom Braden for the April meeting.

Mrs. Dana Kellenberger opened the meeting with the Legend of the Gifts of the Trees, taken from the Garden Path. It is told that when the first red people came upon the earth, they were welcomed by the trees. The trees offered the gifts that would enable the red people to live. Already the Great Spirit had given them corn to eat, but the elm offered its bark from which vessels for storage were made and bowls in which corn pudding could be mixed. The maple tree gave its sweet sap for them to drink. From the oak tree came the corn pouter to make cornmeal. Trees are helpful friends to be treated kindly.

Roll call was answered by naming a favorite spring flower. Reports were read and accepted.

The book, "Carnivorous Plants of the United States and Canada" will be presented to the library in memory of Mrs. Everett Baird. Region 16 meeting will be held in Franklin, Ohio, April 21. Reservations must be in by April 14.

Mrs. Virgil Garinger gave the horticulture hint on "twice the planting, twice the yield." She said that corn and cucumbers planted together benefited each other. Also corn and pumpkins. Corn provides shade for pumpkins. Plant lettuce and carrots together for crops in the same place, she said.

Mrs. Willard Bonham gave a program on "how to keep your house plants happy." Some of the basic needs are to have the right soil mix, the right containers, know when to repot, don't overwater, and look for trouble signs. If leaf tips turn brown, they have been watered too often. If they turn yellow, they need more water.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Kellenberger, Mrs. Esther Braun, Mrs. Opal Bonecutter, Mrs. Hazel Garringer, Mrs. Betty Hoppes, Mrs. Frances Bonham, Mrs. Mary Bonham, Mrs. Reba Blizard, and Mrs. Myrtle Thompson.

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT

PROCLAMATION SIGNED — Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes has signed a proclamation officially designating April as Cancer Control Month. Pictured with the governor is William M. Lane, Columbus, crusade committee chairman of the American Cancer Society, Ohio Division, Inc.

In proclamation signed by Gov. Rhodes

April declared Cancer Control Month

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio Gov. Rhodes has signed a proclamation designating April as Cancer Control Month in the state of Ohio. The governor's proclamation officially marks April as the month for citizen awareness of cancer and the efforts being made to control and finally eradicate the disease.

The American Cancer Society, as part of this effort, is undertaking its residential crusade for education and fund raising in April. This year 160,000 American Cancer Society volunteers going door to door in Ohio asking for contributions will also be passing out literature and discussing the seven cancer warning signals, breast self-examination, the Pap test and other life-saving information with people in the 88 Ohio counties.

An estimated 19,300 Ohioans will die of cancer in 1977 but now one of three persons who has cancer is cured of the disease. For this reason the American Cancer Society concentrates its efforts particularly in April to gather funds to continue research projects, foster more educational programs and to service an increased number of cancer patients and their families.

In signing the proclamation, Gov. Rhodes said, "Cancer is the common foe of all mankind and will strike 35,000 Ohioans this year. But of greater importance is 10,000 Ohio citizens beat cancer during 1976. I urge all residents of the state to support the educational and fund-raising efforts of the American Cancer Society as part of Cancer Control Month in April."

The American Cancer Society operates a three-pronged attack on cancer: research, education, and service and rehabilitation. "Early detection and diagnosis are the keys to cancer control," said Dr. Jack L. Harris, president of the Ohio Division of the American Cancer Society. "This can be accomplished through public and professional education of the facts and warning signals of cancer. During this month our crusade for education and fund raising takes place. It is a big task but we are working hard to find a cure in our lifetime," he added.

'Roots' attack angers author

LONDON (AP) — Author Alex Haley says a British reporter's challenge to the factual basis of his book "Roots" was an "unwarranted, unfair and unjust" smear attack.

"I stand by and defend my work," Haley said Sunday as he arrived from New York for a four-day stay en route to Africa. "I took over nine years to write my book, but I think that this reporter took less than nine days."

A copyrighted article by Mark Ottaway in the Sunday Times claimed "Roots" has "little basis in provable fact."

Ottaway was particularly critical of Haley's climactic chapter tracing his ancestry to an 18th century West African named Kunta Kinte who was seized by slavers while chopping wood outside the village of Juffure, in what is now Gambia.

Ottaway after an investigation in Gambia wrote that Haley's information came from an oral historian who was notoriously unreliable. He said Juffure was "a white trading post surrounded by white colonialization," and "insofar as the inhabitants of Juffure were involved in slave trading, it was not as victims but as collaborators with the whites."

Haley said of the man who told him the story of Kunta Kinte: "I never had the slightest cause to consider him unreliable. What am I to do but accept what he told me? There are no written records in African villages. The only thing that works in African villages is oral history."

He agreed with Ottaway that the villagers of Juffure cooperated in the slave trade but said this did not disprove the story that Kunta Kinte was captured by slavers.

"Slave ship captains did not care about pacts or agreements," he said. "They had holds to be filled with blacks and anybody who was accessible to kidnapping was kidnaped and taken away."

Leach acquitted of kidnap charge

CLEVELAND (AP) — Thirteen persons testified that former combat medic Ashby Leach held them at gunpoint against their will, but a jury refused to convict him of kidnaping.

The verdict has prosecution and defense scratching their heads with wonder.

Free on a $100,000 appeal bond, Leach has not repudiated his actions. But he has denied he was a kidnaper or petty criminal.

"This is an example of jury nullification," said Robert Kickel, one of the prosecutors. "The jury chose to ignore the law, possibly because of Leach's personal appeal."

On the other hand, defense attorney R. Raymond Twohig said, "It's quite possible Leach could have been convicted if the charge had been abduction or unlawful restraint. Those charges differ in the kind of intent in holding somebody....The jury probably did not want to treat this as a heavy, heavy crime such as kidnaping."

The charges stemmed from the August 1976 day Leach walked into the Cleveland headquarters of the Chessie System railroad company, his former employer, and demanded to see the company president. When he was told the president was not in, Leach rounded up 13 persons in the office while he negotiated with company officials.

He said he wanted the company to participate in a GI Bill program that would give apprentice machinists supplemental pay while they underwent training—a benefit he didn't enjoy when he was a Chessie apprentice.

The central defense was based on Leach's intent—his state of mind when he took the captives. That shouldn't be confused with motive which in law denotes what prompts a person to act and cannot be used to defend a crime.

In opening trial statements, prosecutor Ray Gricar depicted Leach as someone who used the captives "as pawns to satisfy his whims and demands" and as someone who might have used his gun to hurt someone during the ordeal.

"We could not have presented a better case if we had a video tape of Leach in the hostage room," said Kickel.

During the trial, Leach won the right to act as his own co-counsel. Dressed in dungarees, cowboy boots and a leather jacket, he fumed about "legal paper shuffling" in the case, accused Chessie of trying to do a "railroad job" on him, said he held the captives under "protective custody" and as a protest and not for personal reward or to harm them, and said he apologized to the captives for detaining them and that although he broke the law, "I think it was educational for them."

John Campbell, Ohio ironmaster credited for pioneering the "hot blast" method which revolutionized the industry, founded Ironton in Lawrence County in 1849 with its Big Etna Blast Furnace, largest in the world at the time. Because of its tough quality the local iron was in demand for Civil War ordinance. —AP

Crime prevention program launched

successful because the members "turned into a bunch of vigilantes."
"At no time do we want them to do anything physical. Just tell us what they see," he noted.
Police officers are instructing members that once a Crime Buster alert has been issued not to acknowledge the alert as this could ultimately impede subsequent transmissions.
Persons transmitting false information over the Crime Busters network will be subject to immediate dismissal from membership and possible Federal Communications Commission notification. The filing of criminal charges is also possible.

Scott said the concept for such a program has been under consideration for quite some time by police department personnel.

"The possibility was first considered after I had received numerous inquiries from sincere, concerned citizens who had CB radios and wanted to know what, if anything, they could do in the event they observed something suspicious, an accident or a crime in progress," the police chief explained.

"I felt that our department was missing an excellent opportunity to utilize hundreds of eyes, rather than those of two, or at the most, three police officers on patrol," he added.

The program will be conducted under the direction of Police Sgt. William Robinson.

Sgt. Robinson, a 10-year veteran on the Washington C.H. Police Department, recently completed an intensive National Crime Prevention Institute course in Louisville, Ky.

The police department's crime prevention unit will be headed by Robinson. He will hold the title of crime prevention specialist.

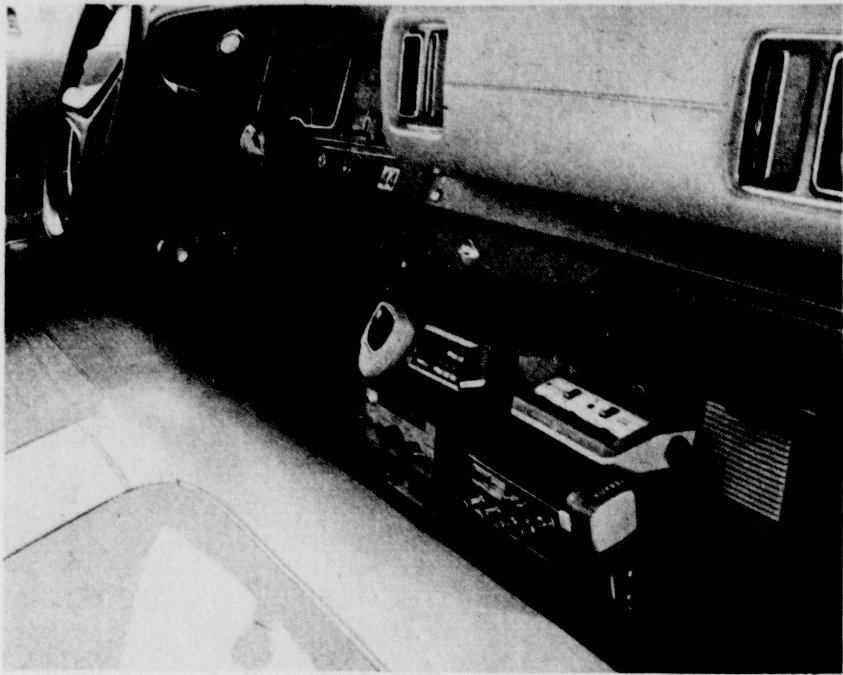

The concept of the program was presented to the 175-member Fayette County Night Owls Citizen's Band Radio Club. "They also felt the program had great possibilities and they were so enthused, they volunteered to help our department in getting the project started," said Scott.

"Without them (the Night Owls) we wouldn't have a program," said Sgt. Robinson. "Their officers have spent a lot of hours getting this thing organized."

Local merchants have also been enthusiastic in their acceptance of the new program by donating all needed equipment and thousands of pieces of printed material.

Through the donations of merchants, the police department has been able to equip its six new cruisers with 23-channel mobile citizen's band radios and install a new 40-channel base station in police headquarters on N. Fayette Street.

Sgt. Robinson, an amateur cartoonist, completed several drawings which are being used in a six-page booklet which describes the program. He also sketched drawings used on an instructions and guideline sheet issued to members and for posters to be distributed in business places throughout the CB RADIOS INSTALLED — New citizen's band radios, purchased by local banking institutions, have been installed in six Washington C.H. Police Department vehicles. The banks equipped the cruisers for a new crime prevention project which was officially launched today.

Fayette County area. Other members of the police department helped with the wording used in all printed material as well as designing the decals which are issued to program members.

Scott said 2,000 copies of the six-page booklet were originally printed. "We've since discovered that this amount was not nearly sufficient, due to the tremendous interest in the program, and a second printing will be necessary," he pointed out.

The Huntington Bank, the First National Bank, the Fayette County Bank and the First Federal Savings and Loan Association donated mobile radios for the police cruisers; Wholesale 2-Way Communications donated the base station radio; Carroll Halliday, Inc. financed the printing costs for the six-page booklets; Boylan and Cannon Electronics, Inc. paid for the decals, and the Buckeye Savings Association paid for the printing of posters to advertise the project.

Individual members of the police department have also been enthusiastic in their support of the program.

"They're (police personnel) are almost 100 per cent behind it already," Scott said. "All but one of our officers have 'handles' so far."

The police chief credited a local citizen's band radio operator with providing the department with information used recently in the apprehension of a suspicious person.

The program will be open to any civic-minded citizen's band radio operator in the Fayette County area. The members should be at least 16 years old and be licensed drivers. However, the program is not restricted to persons with mobile units, Scott said. Residents with base stations in their homes are also eligible to join.

Non-residents are also eligible to join the program. "For instance, there might be a truck driver who makes deliveries here once or twice a week, and we'd certainly be happy for him to join."

Persons interesting in becoming members should report to police headquarters where the program will be explained in depth. Instructions will be issued and the members will be asked to complete an application which will be kept on file in the department's communications room. The member's "handle," FCC call letters and a unit number assigned by the department will be included on the application card. The member will then be issued a colorful red, white and blue decal to be placed in the lower left rear window of his or her vehicle.

The police department, according to Scott and Sgt. Robinson, plans to expand its crime prevention programs to as many different areas as possible.

Sgt. Robinson said one of the additional programs will probably be launched this summer when officers and auxiliary personnel will be engraving citizen's band radios and other related equipment free of charge for Fayette County area residents.

Another crime prevention program will be incorporated into the Crime Busters project, Sgt. Robinson stated.

On the application blanks to be completed by program members, there is a space for the owner's unit identification number. Beside the identification is the local police department's nationwide computer system identifier.

By engraving citizen's band radio equipment with the owner's Social Security number and the police department's identifier (OH-2401), thefts can be prevented or at least reduced.

The engraving will provide positive identification in the event the equipment is stolen.

Indian lore studied

FORT ANCIENT, Ohio (AP) — The students and teachers have given themselves Indian names and their classroom is the open air.

The "school" is part of an outdoor classroom experiment involving fifth-graders from all three elementary schools in the Northridge school district.

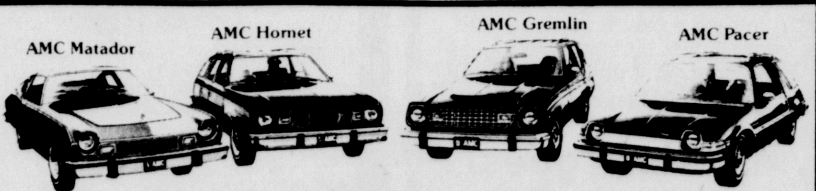

The school principal is called Swift Eagle from the Sun. The pupils are known as Little Deer, Brave Bear and Little Wolf.

During lessons they are surrounded by woods, ponds, campfires and trails. It's on a reservation of sorts, the Triple K Ranch at Camp Kern east of Lebanon.

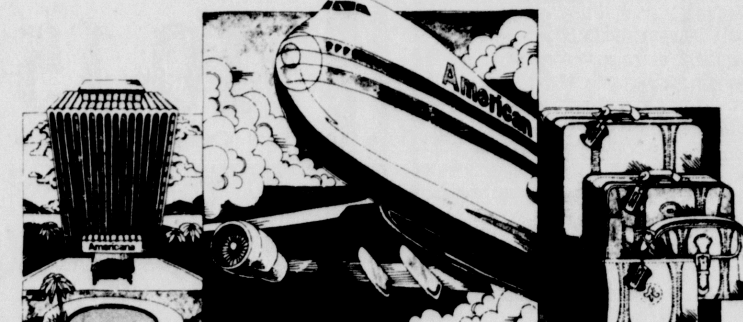

About 40 pupils from the schools spend 2½ days at the Warren County retreat learning about history and the environment.

"While learning about the Shawnee Indians, who once lived on this land, we give everyone an Indian name and teach them how to make about 100 signs with their hands," said Morrison elementary principal Phil Price.

Letters from R-H readers

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

The following is a copy of a letter recently sent to Representative William Harsha by Marianne Loudner, 629 Fairway Drive. She thought the public should be able to read the letter so that they might see fit to help in the campaign against Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS).

Dear Mr. Harsha:
I wish to plead with you to vote for bill number HR-302 which was introduced by Rep. Stephen J. Solars, of New York. The bill is a declaration of war against amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS).

ALS strikes thousands of victims every year. It affects the muscles and nerve ends, the results are pain, helplessness, paralysis and death. There is no hope given these victims as the cause is not known.

It hits people in the prime of life. It takes away their ability to earn a living making them dependent on others, therefore depriving them of all dignity. In a relatively short time, they always die. ALS is not hereditary nor is it contagious.

If I sound like I know a lot about ALS I should. I live with it every day. My husband has been stricken with it. Until this disease hit him he was a healthy, normal, hard-working man.

I thank God every day that you can't die of a broken heart or all of our family and many of our friends would surely be gone.

If we could just have a little hope. Please vote for the Declaration of War on ALS (HR-302).

Mrs. Joseph F. Loudner
629 Fairway Drive.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

This morning (Saturday, April 9) we took our children to the Easter egg hunt at the fairgrounds. The Moose Lodge is to be commended for sponsoring this event. The time and efforts of the Moose members is appreciated we are sure.

This was the first time our children had attended this hunt so maybe we didn't know what to expect. We were shocked! The conduct of some of the parents attending was unbelievable. One woman actually drug her child for at least 6-8 feet in her search for eggs! (This was in the 1-5 age group).

We thought this hunt was for children. We can understand that some of the toddlers may need help but parents were swarming in all the age divisions. They way some parents acted, you would have thought the eggs were made of gold. We had children in each age group and all managed to find eggs without our help.

There really should be more rules or more enforcement of rules for this event. Couldn't a small area be set aside for the toddlers so parents could be close by to watch them?

All other parents should be kept out of the hunt. Also, the fairgrounds should be closed off to all traffic. This way the children would be quite safe and be able to hunt the eggs for themselves.

Maybe some of the other groups in town such as the Jaycees, Eagles, Rotary, Lions etc. could help share in some of the expense and supervision for this event.

Again this letter is not to criticize the Moose or the Easter egg hunt but to criticize the conduct of some of those parents.

MARION MARVELS W

The first meeting of the Marion Marvels W 4-H club was called to order by last years vice-president, Doug Miller, in the home of our advisor, Malcolm Bloomer.

The club discussed the topic of a new name, since the original club was divided due to too many members. It was decided to wait and see what the Marion Marvels E club would do about their name and for the time being just add W to our club's name.

The club then elected officers. They are as follows: President, Doug Miller; vice-president, Jay Bloomer; secretary, Julie Bloomer; treasurer, Karen Miller; news reporter, Beth Rapp; health, Melanie Dennis; safety, Doug Mace; recreation leaders, Steve Mace and Linda Miller. The advisors are Malcolm Bloomer and Tom Dennis. It was voted to change dues from $1 to $2. It was also voted to make a donation to the awards round-up.

Over 75 to join project Night Owls welcome crime curb program

The Fayette County Night Owls Citizen Band Radio Club welcomed the Washington C.H. Police Department's "CB Crime Busters" program with open arms Saturday night. Over 75 club members promised to join an effort to fight crime in Fayette County.

Police Sgt. William Robinson attended the club's monthly meeting Saturday and explained the newly instituted program.

Robinson will head the program which requests citizen's band radio operators to report actual crimes in progress or suspicious incidents. It is believed to be the first such program in Ohio.

Club members also volunteered to assist the Fayette County Life Squad in the sale of subscriptions for emergency medical care service. Ron Merritt and Virginia Short were placed in charge of the club's subscription drive assistance.

Mrs. Dale Everhart Jr., was appointed to head 15 club members, who volunteered to assist with the April 30 March of Dimes Walk-a-Thon. The club also agreed to sponsor six walkers in the fund-raising drive. Club members

WASHINGTON REPORT From WILLIAM H. HARSHA Representative To Congress 6th District, Ohio

A 19-year-old law designed to protect Americans from hazardous exposure to cancer-producing chemical additives in our food supply may be creating a greater health hazard than it is preventing.

It has resulted in a ban on saccharin, and its victims could number in the millions. In an effort to avert possibly tragic consequences, I have joined in sponsoring legislation to halt the ban before the artificial sweetener is withdrawn from the market some four months from now.

The law in question is the so-called Delaney Amendment, which was added in 1958 to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, and which bans any food additive that "is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal."

The amendment was the product of a select committee investigation into the use of chemicals in food, and its intentions were good. However, as we have learned, first with cyclamates and now with saccharin, the law is unyielding and prohibits the Food and Drug Administration from using any discretion in its actions on such additives.

It excludes the possibility of a judgment on whether removal of a product from the marketplace does more harm than good. Furthermore, it does not allow consideration of more valid medical evidence.

In the case of saccharin, the ban rests on no more evidence than the appearance of cancer in laboratory rats fed massive doses of the additive in a Canadian experiment. A human would have to drink 800 twelve-ounce bottles of diet soda a day, for the rest of his life, to take in as much saccharin as the equivalents fed the rats.

Not considered in the decision to ban saccharin was an American study, conducted at Albany Medical College, during which Rhesus Monkeys were fed heavy doses of saccharin over a six-and-a-half-year period with no resulting cancers.

On balance, a study on monkeys would seem more relevant to human reactions than one conducted on rats.

The real hazard lies in the possible unavailability of saccharin to this nation's 10 million diabetics who depend on the artificial sweetener.

Add to that group, millions more who are overweight and/or are heart patients. Many elderly invalids use saccharin as a means of strictly controlling their diets as well.

Since the announcement of the proposed ban, many bills have been introduced to revise the strict language in the Delaney Amendment. That is all well and good, but such revisions will necessitate detailed discussion and examination into the best approach.

In the meantime, since saccharin is scheduled to be withdrawn in a scant four months, action is needed quickly to keep it on the market, while Congress reexamines language in the present law.

Park campsite reservations open

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Reservations for campsites at 12 state parks will be accepted beginning April 29, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

"Campers can make reservations up to four weeks in advance beginning April 29 for the Memorial Day weekend through the Labor Day weekend," said Ralph Vanzant, chief of the division of Parks and Recreation.

The department says more than 21,000 campers have used the reservation system since it was started two years ago.

Parks for which reservations are accepted include: Cowan Lake, Delaware, Dillon, East Harbor, Hocking Hills, Heuston Woods, Indian Lake, Lake Hope, Mohican, Pymatuning, Salt Fork and Stonelick.

Up to 50 per cent of the campsites are available for reservation with the other half available on a first-come, first-served basis.

GRASSROOTS TECHNOLOGY — A group of Wilmington College students recently constructed a table-top model home to illustrate various methods in which homeowners could improve their existing energy consumption levels. The project was completed by students in an economics class. Each student in the class was asked to come up with one energy-saving project and show how it could be used in the home. Among the ideas used in the table-top model were solar panels, an improved chimney flue system, landscaping designed to lower energy requirements, and a methane cooker to ferment household garbage and produce household gas. Pictured, left to right, are Edward Adams, of Midland; Dr. Martin Giesbrecht, class instructor; Dennis Garrison, 415 W. Food store chains improve

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The embattled food store chains, possessors of industry's smallest profit percentage and recipient of some of the harshest customer criticism, have improved their margins of late.

Whether that improvement has real significance is another matter, because the food stores, like their customers, also have suffered from dwindling buyer power.

Still, the chains managed to increase their margin on sales in 1976 to a full point, double the return on sales in 1975, and that's an impressive rate of improvement, inflation notwithstanding.

A study by Citibank shows that general improvement, though not to the same degree, was experienced throughout industry, no matter how measured.

But all these favorable comparisons, the bank noted, were primarily the result of recovery from recession, plus continued inflation, and so the question remains: How much real momentum is left for the expansion ahead?

After-tax profits rose 29 per cent last year over 1975, based on a survey of 4,289 corporations. But, a "profits deflator" measurement of the Commerce Department shows corporate buying power down by about the same amount since 1973.

Thus, the bank concludes, "The average purchasing power of 1976 earnings was about the same as it was three years earlier, despite the appreciable growth in the meantime in real corporate sales."

This experience undoubtedly has some bearing on the current worries among businessmen that inflation could very well head toward double digits again and, in effect, leave industry spinning its wheels without traction.

It helps explain what might otherwise be thought of as a morbid preoccupation with the worst in the midst of some of the best economic news in the past couple of years, a fixation on the negative that could itself cause problems.

Sales are destined to go higher, which of course pleases business, but if inflation shadows the sales then to what does it all add up?

Thus business needs convincing that the Carter administration probably cannot provide, no matter how sound its anti-inflation program might be. If there is a pinhole in it, then businessmen will see a gap.

It is through such gaps that businessmen see a flow of price increases pouring forth. And, memories being so recent, they seem poised to join the flow by raising their own prices so as to keep afloat.

This very scenario therefore could be the cause of a second great concern of business: imposition of controls. Businessmen readily admit they are in the grip of this phobia but, of course, they say it off the record.

The Carter administration has a tough job to dispel such notions, because the doubts of business might be grounded as much in its own worries as in the quality of the upcoming anti-inflation program.

It has to treat the emotional as well as intellectual content of the situation. It has to prove its understanding and mastery of all facets of the problem, and it has to do so quickly.

That very large order is made necessary by tension and doubt in the business community that is drifting toward fear, and could from there lead to a price explosion that nobody wants.

French supplies flown to Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — France has sent 11 cargo planes to transport supplies for Moroccan troops aiding the Zaire government's war against invaders in the southern part of the country, French officials say.

Officials in Paris said the cargo planes would carry "exclusively Moroccan materiel and no troops whatsoever." The French government said the governments of Zaire and Morocco asked for the assistance.

Western diplomats in Kinshasa confirmed the arrival of 1,500 Moroccan troops to fight the Katangan exiles who invaded their native province — now called Shaba — from Angola on March 8.

Meanwhile, Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko told Newsweek magazine he was "bitterly disappointed" because the United States had not sent him the arms and ammunition he requested.

"If you have decided to surrender piecemeal to the Soviet-Cuban grand design in Africa, I think you owe it to us and to your friends to have the frankness to admit it," Mobutu said in an interview with the American news magazine.

The United States says it has sent Mobutu medical supplies and non-combat military supplies. Belgium has sent small arms, and a Zaire government spokesman said the Chinese are sending 30 tons of emergency supplies.

Mobutu told a rally in Kinshasa that the invading Katangans had been helped "by complicity at the highest levels of the Zaire army." He said one army officer had been arrested.

The president said the invaders intercepted his forces' communications. He said this enabled them to cross the border just as fuel rationing was imposed in Shaba and armored units were withdrawn from the area.

There have been no reports of fighting in the province for a week. The invaders' front lines are believed to have stabilized some 30 to 50 miles west of Kolwezi, the center of the copper mines. It is some 800 miles southeast of Kinshasa and 210 miles east of the Angolan border.

The invaders are reported to be veterans of Moise Tshombe's Katanga army of the early 1960s who fled to Angola after the failure of Tshombe's attempt to detach mineral-rich Shaba from the rest of the country.

But Mobutu told Newsweek only the officers and senior non-commissioned officers were Tshombe's veterans and the rest of the invaders were recruited in Shaba in the past two years.

George Michael Davis, 25, of Rising

Sun in Sandusky County, and his son, George Michael Davis, Jr., were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. Both were thrown from an auto that left a county road in western Sandusky County and struck two mailboxes and two trees.

The Ohio Highway Patrol post in Fremont is continuing its investigation of the 7:30 p.m. mishap. The two fatality victims were the only persons involved in the one-car accident.

brothers, Terry Davis of Orient, Cubby Davis of Washington C.H., and Paul Davis of Gahanna; and a sister, Mrs. Tom (Nancy) Clark of Fremont.

Americans late to file tax returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service figures it is short about 20 million income tax returns, with only five days left until the April 15 deadline.

And millions of taxpayers who got their returns in early made mistakes, in part because of changes in the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

This year, about 9.5 per cent of the nearly 31 million persons filing 1040 forms by April 1 made mistakes, the IRS says. The error rate on the 23.1 million 1040A forms was even higher, 13.6 per cent.

One way to reduce the possibility of error, IRS officials say, is to let them calculate your taxes.

That provides the added benefit of not having to send a check to the government until it sends you a bill, probably several weeks from now.

The IRS will figure taxes on short forms if they contain necessary information on earnings and taxes paid. Tax bureaucrats can take care of the two calculations which seem to cause the most difficulty, the standard deduction and the general tax credit.

If you want to file your own taxes, but don't think you're going to get all the calculations made in time, the government offers an extension — but it may cost more money.

If you send a Form 4868 to the IRS by Friday, you gain a reprieve of 60 days. But if you owe the government taxes, you have to include an estimate of how much, and submit a check with the estimate.

SECOND FLOOR P·L·E·A·S·E

Opening up the second floor couldn't have come sooner.

If you've been shopping at Craig's recently, you've certainly noticed how crowded it's been. As you know, we had to move our second floor merchandise to the main floor because of our water pipes bursting during that unforgettable month of February. Well, the new carpet is down and the final touches are completed. So now you can once again enjoy shopping on Craig's two floors.

Another Randy Jones?

Shirley stymies Reds, 12-4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Have the San Diego Padres found another Randy Jones?

Rookie Bob Shirley, 22, had just finished pitching his first major league game Sunday and the comparisons to Jones, the National League's Cy Young award winner, were already circulating.

"He's got a chance to win 20 games very soon," said Padres' pitching coach Roger Craig. "He and Randy are different types of pitchers, but they both remind me of Whitey Ford the way they control a game."

Shirley, vaulting from the minors to the majors in one year, made his big league debut in stunning style, striking out 11 world champions while spacing four hits in a 12-4 San Diego romp.

"It's a dream come true," said the former University of Oklahoma standout who may give the Padres one of the most improved pitching staffs in baseball. He joins Jones, a 22-game winner last year, plus co-rookie of the year reliever Butch Metzger and free agent addition Rollie Fingers.

"I don't think people know what we have here," said Shirley, the Padres' No. 1 selection in the 1976 January supplemental draft.

He obviously just wasn't referring to pitching.

The Padres won the last two games for a split of the season-opening series, out-hitting the Reds 47-25.

Dave Winfield, a hitting hero and hubman in the Padres offense, explained it best.

"In the past, Mike Ivie and I were called upon to carry the offense. Now anybody is likely to explode now that we've got guys like Gene Tenace and George Hendrick," said Winfield, who had a pair of two-run doubles in the Padres' 15-hit attack.

Tenace, a hitting star in the Oakland A's 1972 World Series victory over the Reds, drove in seven runs in the four-game series.

"I'm looking for a big year all the way around," said Winfield, who appears on the verge of greatness after hitting .283 last year.

Winfield said it Shirley's performance was no fluke. "He came at us like that in spring training."

Shirley, who lost his first four starts as a pro last summer in Class AA ball, went to spring training as a nonroster player but won a starting berth with a 3.32 earned run average and 18 strikeouts in 19 innings.

Craig was impressed from the start. "The first time I saw him, I told management that if I had my say, this kid's made the club. My feeling was that if I've got 10 better pitchers on this team, we might not lose a game," said Craig.

Shirley's breaking pitches silenced Cincinnati's loud bats.

"He gives you one ball to hit and you better hit it," said Pete Rose, whose three-run double came in the ninth came when Shirley departed with two out. "He definitely knows what he is doing."

But, reminded Rose, "we've had history of having trouble with new pitchers the first time around. It may be different the next time."

The Reds open their first road game of the season tonight at Houston with Woodie Fryman, 1-0, facing Doug Koniczny.

WHAT DO YOU DO WHEN YOU'RE CANCELLED — Miami Trace tried to get a rescheduled baseball game in last Saturday. But, all they got for their efforts was an intra-squad game. Weather conditions will be ideal for today, though, as Miami Trace hosts Wilmington in baseball as one of five spring events this afternoon involving county teams.

Halicki 'mysterious power' hexes Los Angeles again

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Rookie San Francisco Manager Joe Altobelli wouldn't have had to wait so long for his first major league victory if he had remembered Ed Halicki's mysterious powers over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 6-foot-7 Halicki beat Los Angeles for the fifth straight time Sunday, surrendering 11 hits but surviving for an 8-4 triumph over the Dodgers. That gave the Giants and Altobelli their first victory of the National League baseball campaign after two season-opening losses.

"I'm happy to get that first one off my back," said Altobelli, who replaced Bill Rigney at the conclusion of last season. "That first win feels awfully good."

He should have expected it, since the game was played at Los Angeles, where Halicki did not allow a run in three shutout appearances during the 1976 season.

"I can't really explain it," said the towering right-hander. "I just like pitching here. The mound is good, and so is the atmosphere."

"I like beating the Dodgers. I feel like the king of the hill."

Darrell Evans provided the power, driving in three runs on three hits, including a home run. Johnny LeMaster added a two-run single to break a 1-1 tie in the fourth, and Larry Herndon added a solo home run for San Francisco.

In the other National League games Sunday, the Atlanta Braves blanked the Houston Astros 6-0; the San Diego Padres blasted the Cincinnati Reds 12-4; the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets 5-2; the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7, and the Montreal Expos topped the Philadelphia Phillies 9-8.

Braves 6, Astros 0

Right-hander Dick Ruthven scattered seven hits and Rowland Office drove in two runs as Atlanta beat Houston in a game spiced by two bench-clearing incidents.

The first came in the sixth inning, after Ruthven hit the Astros' Cliff Johnson with a pitch. The benches emptied again after two brush-back pitches by Houston's Gene Pentz.

Padres 12, Reds 4

Left-hander Bob Shirley made his major league debut by striking out 11 and giving up just four hits to the World Champion Reds.

The Reds were out-hit 15-5. Dave Winfield led the attack with a pair of two-run doubles.

Cubs 5, Mets 2

Ivan deJesus drove in four runs, three of them with his first homer of the year, as Chicago downed New York. The Mets wasted two mammoth home runs by Ed Kranepool.

Cardinals 8, Pirates 7

Bake McBride hit a two-run homer and added an RBI single as St. Louis hammered Pittsburgh pitching and beat the Pirates for the third game in a row.

Pittsburgh's Bill Robinson did what he could, powering a two-run homer and a pair of runcoring singles.

Expos 9, Phillies 8

Tony Perez drove in four runs as Montreal outscored Philadelphia to sweep the season-opening two-game series. The Phillies came back from 5-0 and 6-2 deficits to take a 7-6 lead in the seventh, but Perez cracked a three-run homer in the eighth to insure the Expos' triumph.

Clark quits 49ers post

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The new owners of the San Francisco 49ers told Coach Monte Clark that despite his winning start with the team, their man Joe Thomas would now be his boss.

Take it or leave it, they added, so Clark left it.

Although 49ers President Edward J. DeBartolo Jr. wouldn't say the coach was fired, Clark said Wednesday. "There's no way I'd resign."

Thomas, who signed a long-term contract as general manager after the DeBartolo Corp. assumed ownership of the National Football League franchise last week, thus begins life in his fourth NFL post amid instant controversy.

"You can't always be popular in this game," the 56-year-old Thomas said at Wednesday's news conference, which had been scheduled to introduce the new management but instead featured the announcement of Clark's departure.

"I benched Johnny Unitas," the 49ers' new general manager reminded everyone, recalling his early days with the Baltimore Colts. He has helped build NFL winners in Baltimore, Miami and Minnesota.

Thomas said he was "the man in the middle" in last year's feud at Baltimore between Coach Ted Marchbroda and owner Robert Irsay.

Cleveland routs Red Sox with 13-run eighth inning

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"Everything they swung at was a base hit," said Boston's Carl Yastrzemski after the Cleveland Indians erupted for a 13-run eighth inning.

"I've been involved in some wild ones in this ballpark, but this was the wildest," Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson said Sunday.

Going into the eighth, the teams were tied 3-3. But Cleveland sent 17 batters to the plate in the inning en route to a 19-9 victory.

In other American League games Sunday, Kansas City blanked Detroit 5-0, Toronto nipped Chicago 3-1, Texas edged Baltimore 3-2, Milwaukee squeezed by New York 2-1, California clobbered Seattle 12-5, and Minnesota and Oakland split a doubleheader, the A's taking the opener 9-6 and Minnesota the nightcap 7-1.

Boston Manager Don Zimmer looked at it philosophically.

"What can you do about it except laugh," he said. "There's nothing you can do about it. I just hope we don't play like that for another two or three years."

Cleveland scored its 13 runs on 10 hits, three walks and an error, triggered by Rick Manning's triple. Then the Red Sox bounced back with six runs in their half of the eighth, setting a modern major league record of 19 runs by two clubs in an inning. The old mark was 17 scored by the Red Sox themselves against Detroit in 1953.

Royals 5, Tigers 0

Home runs by Al Cowens and Darrell Porter, plus six-hit pitching by starter Jim Colburn and reliever Larry Gura paced Kansas City to victory over Detroit. John Mayberry added two RBI to the Royals' attack as Kansas City swept its season opening three-game series with the Tigers.

Blue Jays 3, White Sox 1

Rookie Jerry Garvin and reliever Pete Vuckovich combined to hold Chicago to just six hits while Dave McKay drove in two runs to spark Toronto's win over the White Sox.

The Blue Jays' second selection in their expansion draft, Garvin gave up five hits over eight innings in his major league debut. Steve Stone went the distance for Chicago, giving up five hits while walking three and striking out five.

Brewers 2, Yankees 1

Sixto Lezcano slammed two home runs to spoil Don Gullett's American League debut and lift Milwaukee past the New York Yankees. Lezcano tied the game in the fourth inning with a homer to left, then broke the tie in the ninth with a blast to right center.

Rangers 3, Orioles 2

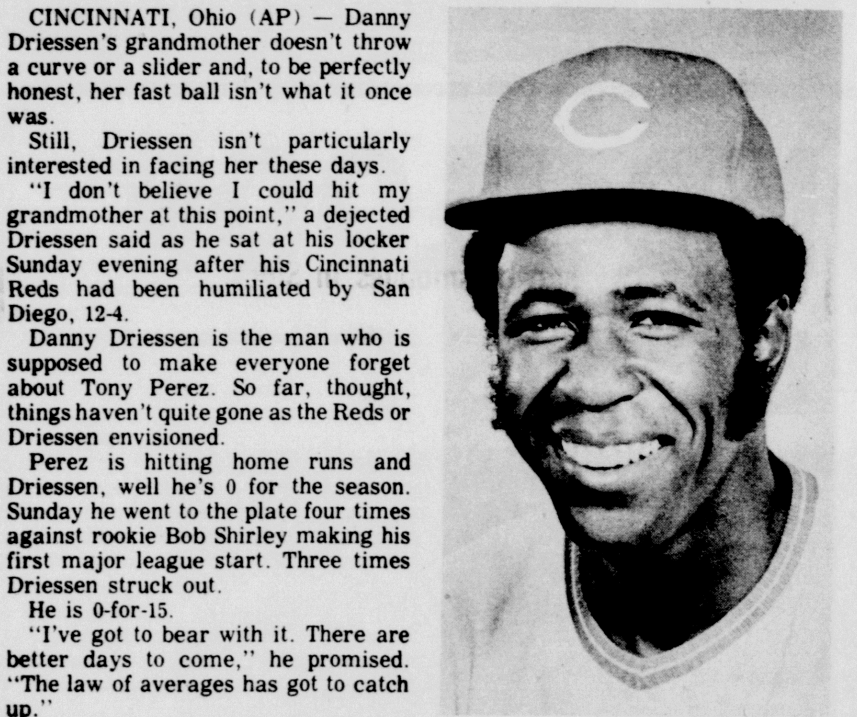

Texas scored two runs in the first inning, then relief pitcher Paul Lindblad squelched a seventh-inning Baltimore rally to preserve the Rangers victory and complete a three-game series sweep.

Bert Campaneris led off the game with a double and, after Bump Wills singled, scored on John Ellis' single. Wills came home on the front end of a double steal. Tom Grieve homered in the second for the Rangers' final run.

Baltimore scored in the fifth on a double and single. Doug DeCinces opened the Orioles' seventh with a homer. Lindblad, who came in after Rick Dempsey followed with a single and Billy Smith walked, set down the Orioles the rest of the way.

Angels 12, Mariners 5

Frank Tanana won his second game of the season as Joe Rudi drove in five runs with a grand slam home run and a double.

DAN DRIESSEN

say he won't read this story.

Driessen, of course, is not the only Red not hitting as they leave for the road with a 2-2 record. During the first series of the year, the Reds collected 25 hits to 47 for San Diego.

Johnny Bench, like Driessen, is still seeking his first hit and there are others who have but one.

"We are not," says Joe Morgan, "swinging the bat."

First round starts tomorrow

NBA playoffs set despite strike

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The National Basketball Association playoffs are here, finally, and even a referees' strike is going to head them off.

It will be Chicago at Portland, Detroit at Golden State and San Antonio at Boston Tuesday night and Cleveland at Washington Wednesday night as the best-of-three first-round series begin.

Who will be refereeing is far less certain. The 24 members of the National Association of Basketball

Referees went on strike on the final day of the regular season Sunday, leaving the officiating chores to non-union members Richie Powers and Earl Strom, referees from the semipro Eastern Basketball League and other local officials.

"Under the circumstances, I thought they were tremendous," Boston Celtics President Red Auerbach said of substitute officials Roger McCann and Paul Campbell, who worked Boston's 115-105 victory over Cleveland at Boston Garden. "They made some mistakes, but all in all, they were no different from what we've had all year."

In other regular season finales Sunday, the Washington Bullets beat the Philadelphia 76ers 131-121, the Chicago Bulls stopped the Buffalo Braves 120-99, the New York Knicks outscored the Detroit Pistons 144-126, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Seattle SuperSonics 113-104, the Milwaukee Bucks beat the San Antonio Spurs 133-125, the Phoenix Suns whipped the New York Nets 128-104 and the New Orleans Jazz surprised the Denver Nuggets 139-125.

The four division winners receive byes through the first round.

Holds off Nicklaus for Masters title

Watson beats choker rap

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Legend seems to refuse to emit its final gasps in the case of Jack Nicklaus, the winningest and most phenomenal golfer of all time. The Masters Tournament has handed over the coveted green coat to a new champion — a pleasant, freckled Huckleberry Finn youngster out of Missouri named Tom Watson — but the shadow of Big Jack hovers bigger than ever over the game.

They said this was the year the young lions would take over — Bruce Lietzke, Danny Edwards, Gary Koch, Tom Purtzer and Andy Bean, those strong-armed rookies who dominated the winter tour.

The putts aren't falling for old Jack anymore, the smart guys insisted, some of the power has gone from his drive and his competitive edge has been dulled by riches and success.

Jack showed 'em.

Young Watson won the green coat this time, deservedly, but it was Nicklaus who put on the greatest final-round surge and missed winning his sixth Masters title by the margin of a two-second stroke — Watson's curling 20-foot putt on the 17th hole.

Jack, the man some said was showing signs of decay at age 37, produced a round that measured up to any in his remarkable record of 61 tour victories, 16 major championships and earnings now on the edge of $3 million.

He shot a six-under-par 66. He destroyed the confidence of his young playing partner, Ben Crenshaw, picking up 10 shots on the co-halfway leader over 18 holes. There is no way of telling how different the outcome might have been if he had been able to look Watson in the eye on every hole.

Watson, 27, played just back of the Nicklaus-Crenshaw tandem in the final twosome.

"God almighty!" Crenshaw exclaimed afterward. "He played like he was going to birdie every hole."

Surprisingly, the huge throng that swept over the Augusta course cheered wildly for Nicklaus against his youthful challengers.

"Come on, Jack, crank one out there!"

"Go gettun, big Bear, you're the greatest!"

It wasn't until Jack dumped his approach shot into the trap on the final hole — his first major mistake and his only bogey — that the war was lost. Then it was lost in a gutty gamble.

The thousands ringing the 18th gave him a thundering ovation.

It was the same kind of ovation a limping, aging Ben Hogan heard when he finished his remarkable 66 in the third round in 1967. It was the same salute that greeted Arnold Palmer's ears when, at age 47, without a victory in four years, he brought his 23rd tournament appearance to an end with a fine 70 Sunday.

The people still like to have heroes. Nicklaus is likely to be a hero for a long time to come — and add to his cache of titles. He could win a half-dozen more of the big ones.

Somebody asked Nicklaus afterward if he thought it was such a great calamity that he had lost a golf tournament.

"Well," responded Nicklaus, "it is if that's what you are shooting for and don't have anything better to do that afternoon."

'A Fringe of Leaves'

A FRINGE OF LEAVES. By Patrick White. Viking. 405 Pages. $10.

A new novel by a Nobel prize winner is an event awaited with more than usual interest. This latest from the Australian laureate, Patrick White, does not disappoint the anticipation. Again, it's a powerful demonstration of his extraordinary imagination, his ability to soar to the heights and probe into the depths of human experience.

In "A Fringe of Leaves," White turns back to a period early in his country's history, the first quarter of the 19th century, when Australia was very little more than a notorious British penal colony. An English couple, Austin and Ellen Roxburgh, visit Austin's brother, a farmer-settler in the new country, and for different reasons find the experience disturbing. In April 1836 they finally embark with relief for the long voyage home. Then, workings of destiny beyond their control and beyond human decision come into play, subjecting them to ordeals of unredeemed horror in which they face a barbarity of nature and of man that makes the rawness of the colonial outposts they had touched briefly and been bruised by seem relatively civilized.

White's major achievement is to chronicle with patient and sympathetic attention, without playing God or psychoanalyst, Ellen's reactions to these events, her ability to survive and adapt to the wrenching changes in her life. Ellen's actions and emotions are presented to us in her own terms, not always understood by her, often the source of confusion and guilt to her, according to her own simple moral code. This very personal odyssey has a broader counterpoint of abstract ideas, concepts of innocence and guilt, of freedom and imprisonment.

The novel has the amplitude, the measured pace, that are the product of control and confidence. White moves his story along with a sure sense of balance. The backgrounds, widely varying in geography, social milieu and emotional intensity, are generously explored but there's very little padding. Everything he has to say is of interest and value to the whole.

This pace is more in the tradition of a 19th than a 20th-century novel. Like Flaubert, White creates a heroine in a pre-Freudian world who is the victim of passions not considered admissible by the manners and moral standards of the day.

But whereas Mme. Bovary festers in her confining provincial environment, Ellen Roxburgh, her contemporary, is led by circumstances further and further away from her simple English country background, through assimilation into a higher social class, through life-and-death adventures at the other end of the world geographically, and finally into situations of primitiveness and utter degradation when even her fringe of leaves, the makeshift skirt and last vestige of propriety to which she has clung, is gone.

Mme. Bovary's cage and its frustrations destroy her. Ellen is challenged by the wide world and by outside events almost but not quite to the limits of sane survival.

Five other weekend mishaps reported

Local youth injured in accident

A 12-year-old Fayette County girl was slightly injured Saturday evening when the mini-bike she was riding started forward while she was attempting to get off. Stitches were required to close a lacerated knee.

Lori Sue Bayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Bayes, 8436 Whiteoak Road, was reportedly riding the small motorcycle in the front yard of her residence when the mishap occurred.

Five other mishaps were reported by area law enforcement agencies over the weekend. There were no other injuries reported.

POLICE

SATURDAY, 10 a.m. — Debbie Hughes, 23, of 1036 Willard St., reportedly opened her car door into the path of a van driven by Randal V. Brown, 19, of 519 N. North St. She was cited for opening a door into traffic. The mishap occurred on E. Court Street.

11:53 a.m. — Ronald E. Brownlee, 35, of 1113 Country Club Drive, was cited for failure to maintain an assured clear distance after his auto reportedly struck a car driven by Helen L. Baughn, 61, of 808 S. North St. Brownlee told police officers that he was watching the traffic light at the intersection of S. Elm and Willard streets. When the traffic light changed to green, he reportedly drove through the intersection and struck the Baughn auto in the rear.

SUNDAY, 5:26 p.m. — Sherry L. Hunter, 19, of 431 Walnut St., reportedly drove a van into the driveway at her residence and struck a parked car. The van is owned by Robert Hilderbrand, 916 Davis St., and the parked car is owned by Ms. Hunter.

8:22 p.m. — James A. Parkinson, 16, Sabina, was cited for failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead when his car reportedly struck the rear of a car driven by Brian K. Howard, 1260 Nelson Place. Howard's auto was then pushed into a third car, but no damage was sustained. The mishap occurred on Columbus Avenue near the Lewis Street intersection.

SHERIFF

SATURDAY, 3:30 p.m. — A pickup truck driven by James E. Wynne, 47, of 4570 Washington-Waterloo Road, struck a metal gate and three rods of fence on the Stuckey Road. Wynne told deputies that he had pulled the truck off onto the right berm and lost control striking the fence, which is owned by Dr. D.R. Junk, 1973 U.S. 62-NE.

Vacant structure burned

The Jeffersonville Fire Department stood by while vacant house burned early Sunday morning at the request of the owner.

The house, located at the intersection of the Carr Road and Ohio 41-N, had reportedly been set afire on at least two previous occasions. This time the owner, Etel Culberson of Dayton, decided to let the structure burn.

The Jeffersonville Firemen remained at the scene to keep the flames from spreading.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department was called to the city dump, 1110 S. Elm St., twice during the weekend.

Saturday at 7:40 p.m., refuse at the dump was reportedly set on fire. Firemen decided to let the refuse burn under controlled conditions.

Sunday evening, a nearby resident called the fire department and reported that flames were getting dangerously high. Firemen responded to the call and wet down the refuse to control the flames.

Pop stolen from grocery

Deputies investigate three larceny cases

Three incidents of larceny are being investigated by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Robert Hakes of Hakes Grocery in New Martinsburg reported that Thursday or Friday someone stole a number of soft drink cans from a vending machine located outside his grocery store. Sheriff's deputies reported that the machine was not forced open and entry was made with an unauthorized key.

Caudill Palmer, 176 Zimmerman Road, reported that a battery was taken from his truck late Saturday while it was parked at his residence.

Betty Polling, of Waverly, reported that someone took the rear license plate from her car while it was parked in front of the Green Acres Nursing Home.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department also investigated an overdose of medication report early Sunday morning. A 16-year-old Fayette County boy reportedly took several sinus pills following a family quarrel. When he became sleepy and uncoordinated, he was taken to the Fayette County Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

Saccharin ban study promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles J. Carney, D-Ohio, has called for another two years of study before any ban on the use of saccharin is implemented.

"Ten million Americans are diabetic and must carefully restrict their intake of sugar," said Carney. "At this time the evidence that saccharin causes cancer is inconclusive."

Carney is co-sponsoring a bill delaying for two years any ban on the food additive. He says the legislation "would allow the FDA and the scientific community sufficient time to consider all the evidence on saccharin and to weigh cautiously the public benefit against any remote risk that saccharin might present."

Boosters discuss overlay purchase

The purchase of new overlays for band uniforms was studied at the regular monthly meeting of the Miami Trace High School band boosters club.

Boosters discussed the style, types of material and prices for the new overlays. Artist's sketches will be made and a decision on the purchase will be made at the next meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 18 in the band room.

Club presidnet Elaine Vanzant appointed three committees. Named were Jean Feters, Ruth Elzroth and Mary Longberry, nominating committee; Ann Thompson, Janet Carson and Marilee Peterson, auditing committee, and Andy Anderson, Mary Longberry and Elaine Vanzant, awards committee.

District band competition will be held at Miami Trace April 23. Melanie Merriman is the concessions committee chairman. The band concert will be held May 5.

See more scandals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has warned shareholders that a federal grand jury inquiry could reveal more bribery scandals which could "significantly impair" its ability to get future orders and otherwise damage its financial condition.

In its 1976 annual report, the aerospace company disclosed that it is under investigation by a grand jury in Washington, D.C. Employees and former employees of the company have been subpoenaed to testify, it said.

The investigation could mean "further disclosure of identifying details of foreign payments and scandals" which could "significantly impair the company's ability to obtain future orders," the report said.

Lockheed has already been implicated in scandals involving overseas payoffs. The firm said it is furnishing documents to the grand jury as well as to the Federal Trade Commission in connection with alleged multimillion-dollar bribes and questionable payments abroad.

Lockheed is a major supplier of military aircraft for the U.S. government and a major producer of space vehicles.
